FIFTEEN DOLLARS REWARD.

RAN away from the Subscribers on the night of the first of August last, a Negro fellow named JOHN, about 20 years of age, and somewhere about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches high, of a lusty clumsy make, very fat faced, has a hasty crabbed temper, speaks thick, has a small cast in his eyes and has lost some of his under teeth: He had on and took with him when he went away, a new osnaburg shirt and trousers, an old fine white shirt, two castor hats, a blossom coloured coat, a napped jacket with sleeves, lined with striped flannel, a pair of black satinet breeches and a pair of olive coloured corduroy ditto, a long skirted black jacket and a green cloth ditto, all of which are about half worn, a pair of old white thread stockings with the feet pieced, a pair of broad white metal shoe buckles, one red and one blue and white pocket handkerchief.—He was purchased of Mr. Littleton Ward, of the Eastern-Shore in Virginia, where he has a wife and may probably have made that way.—Whoever takes up said Negro and delivers him to us in Alexandria, shall receive the above reward, or TEN DOLLARS if secured in any other place so that we may get him again.

HEPBURN and DUNDAS.

Alexandria, Nov. 1, 1786.

FIVE POUNDS REWARD.

RAN away a few days ago from the Subscriber living in Fairfax County, Virginia, DICK a very lusty well made Mulatto fellow, about 25 years of age, has bushy hair or wool, which generally he combs back, large features and eyes; a grum down look when spoken to, is a subtle artful fellow, well acquainted both with Virginia and Maryland, beats a drum pretty well, and formerly a waiting-man: He took with him a light lead coloured country cloth coat, with white metal buttons, a short green ditto, a white cloth waistcoat, a red ditto faced with black velvet, a round hat half worn, and common shoes and stockings. He ran away some time ago, when he worked on board a bay craft by the name of Thomas Webster.—He will probably change his name and pass for a freeman and may have a forged pass.—He will make for the Eastern-Shore, or Pennsylvania, or he will attempt to get on board some vessel, most probably a bay craft.—The above reward will be paid for delivering him to the Subscriber, or for securing him in any gaol and giving notice, so that his master gets him again.—If brought home all reasonable charges paid.

It is a fact, that Dr. Gordon has met with so many crosses in England, on account of his "History," as to determine him to give over all endeavours to accomplish the object of his voyage—The Lord Chancellor (who is the licencer of books) we are told, has refused him a licence for its publication, on account of its partiality to the Americans.

N E W-Y O R K, Oct. 19.

We learn from Boston, that on Sunday, last week, the Hon. Rufus King, Esq; arrived there from Congress; and that on the Wednesday following, being the 11th instant, he appeared before the Hon. House of Representatives, in compliance with their vote, and gave full information relative to the affairs of the United States immediately affecting that Commonwealth, of which the following is an abstract.

Mr. King informed, that ill success had attended their efforts to procure a redemption of the old continental bills of credit—of the reasons why Congress will not accede, at present, to the proposition of the expences of the Penobscot expedition becoming a federal expence—that the settlement of the States accounts with the United States had been retarded—that the alloy and value of coins having been established by Congress, a mint would probably be soon erected, and a coin, with an American, instead of a foreign impression, be thrown into circulation—that the demands of sundry individuals for property taken by British commanders, the subject of the Eastern boundaries of Massachusetts, and the insolent conduct of a late naval officer, had been noticed in a manner suitable to the dignity of that State—that the report of the Commercial Convention was before Congress, and that doubts had arisen as to the mode of agreeing upon commercial regulations.

As to the matter of interest due to British subjects, Mr. King observed, that nothing final had been accomplished, but much attention had been paid in England to American acts which were said (and of them which postponed the payments of British debts were justly said) to be breaches of this part of the treaty. But the treaty was the law of the land, and there could not be a question that the peculiarity of the situation of the two countries justified the wishes of Americans, as to withholding interest during the war. Juries had a right to determine the question, and this would render legislative interference unnecessary.

That the federal treasury afforded a most melancholy prospect. Decency forbid his making any observations upon the supplies from that Commonwealth, the other New-England States were equally in arrear with Massachusetts. New-York had lately exerted herself, New-Jersey, and Delaware were quite deficient, Pennsylvania had complied with considerable exactness, with the late requisitions of Congress, and Maryland and Virginia had made liberal contributions, but that the three Southern States had paid little or no money since the war; that in the course of the two last years not more than half a million of specie dollars had been received, a sum scarcely equal to the annual charges of the federal government. It has become a subject of admiration how government existed. From foreign loans nothing was to be expected; the gleanings of these had hitherto kept things along. But what were to become of our demands from foreigners? The French Crown no doubt would be, as it had been, magnanimous: The Spanish debt was small; but our creditors in Holland were not to be put off. Educated in the science of money matters, they held every man as much bound as though he had sealed his obligation, and all property would alike be exposed to their reprisals.

So melancholy was the state of the federal treasury, that all men seemed to turn away from it, as an evil which admitted of no remedy. If all the States could be brought into the continental impost, this resource indeed might be anticipated, and the national credit strengthened in that way, but there remained two States which had not acceded to it, Pennsylvania and New-York. The situation of the former was known, and should that State comply with the system, little doubt could be entertained of the accession of New-York.

Mr. King expatiated largely, and with great pathos, upon the subject of the late insurrection—That Congress were deeply concerned in the result—that they realized their lives, liberties and properties as involved in the issue of their decisions—that the British packet had been despatched a day earlier than usual, and perhaps in consequence of these commotions, &c.

Information to Captains, who may bring tobacco from the United States of America, to any Port in Great-Britain.

[The following is copied from a late British act of Parliament, which publication may prevent difficulties when tobacco ships arrive in England.]

"THIS is to give notice, that according to act of Parliament, every master of a vessel who takes in tobacco from any of the United States of America, for any port in Great-Britain, must have a MANIFEST thereof, containing, viz.

Name of the port or place where tobacco is taken on board.

The name of the ship or vessel taking tobacco.

The tonnage of the ship or vessel.

A true account of all tobacco laden on such ship or vessel, with the number of the hogsheads, casks, chests and cases, containing the same.

The particular weight of tobacco contained in each particular hogshead, cask, chest and case, and the tare thereof.

Marks and numbers set on each hogshead, chest or case.

The oath of the master, or other persons, having or taking charge of the ship or vessel laden with tobacco in the United States of America, testifying the truth thereof, must be endorsed on the said manifest, and sworn to by the said master, or other person, having or taking the command, on or before the clearing of the ship or vessel in the United States, before the British Consul, if there shall be any one resident at or near the port or place where the tobacco is laden, or before some Magistrate or Public Officer at or near to such place, if there by not any British Consul there.

N. B. The oath must be on the manifest, if it is on a separate paper, the vessel cannot be admitted to enter into Great-Britain."

Extract of a Letter from a Delegate in the General Assembly to a Gentleman in this Town, dated Richmond, Nov. 1, 1786.

"To the Glory of this Commonwealth, a Vote has passed this Day in the House of Delegates upon two Petitions presented to us, for the Emission of Paper-Money, to this Effect, viz. That the Emission of Paper-Money, is unjust, impolitic and destructive of that Virtue, which is the Basis of Republican Governments.—EIGHTY-FIVE were in favor of this Resolution—Seventeen against it."——Vivat Respublica.
